

LP Building Products Showcasing Innovative Solutions at NY Stock Exchange Today

May 14, 2018

LP team to ring opening bell to start day's trading

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)--May 14, 2018-- LP Building Products (LP) (NYSE: LPX) , a proven leader in innovative, high-performance building solutions, will open the trading day at the New York Stock Exchange where a team of LP employees will ring the opening bell.

As a part of the morning's events, a group of investors and analysts will get a first-hand look at LP's uniquely engineered building products on display right on Wall Street.

"As we celebrate our 45-year history, we are focused on transforming LP into a leading building solutions company," LP Building Products CEO Brad Southern said. "We are here in New York to showcase our innovative products that are driving sustainable growth and enhanced shareholder value. The products we are displaying today, such as LP® SmartSide® Trim & Siding, LP® FlameBlock® Fire-Rated OSB Sheathing, LP® TechShield® Radiant Barrier Sheathing, LP® Legacy® Sub-Flooring, show our commitment to high-performance building solutions."

The building products will be displayed in the LP House Party, a mobile experience that travels across the country offering product displays and demonstrations to builders and dealers from coast to coast. For builders, dealers and architects, these products offer solutions to design and build more efficiently.

With its growing portfolio of high performance building solutions, LP continues to prove to its customers and investors that the company is committed to offering the product durability and dependability that the current and future building industry demands.
