

LP's Wilmington, N.C. Operations Temporarily Shut Down Following Hurricane Florence

September 20, 2018

NASHVILLE, Tenn.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Sep. 20, 2018-- Louisiana-Pacific Corporation (LP) (NYSE:LPX) announced today that due to Hurricane Florence, its Wilmington, N.C. engineered wood operations have been temporarily shut down.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with those impacted by this storm, especially our employees," LP CEO Brad Southern said.

"We are thankful that as far as we know, none of our employees have been injured during the storm and subsequent flooding over the past few days, however many have damaged homes and some have been displaced by the flooding," he added.

The company's Wilmington mill suffered damage in the storm. An LP response team has begun assessing the extent of the damage.

LP has inventory at the mill that was not damaged and plans to continue servicing customers for the near term from inventory on hand at the Wilmington facility.

LP employs 700 people at its three North Carolina mills, including 149 at its engineered wood products plant in Wilmington. The company's operations in Roaring River and Roxboro were not impacted by the storm.
